The Culture Question - The Secret to Employee Engagement

Based on the book, The Culture Question, this workshop provides a guide for how every organization can become a great place to work. Unfortunately, far too many people don't like where they work. Some organizations are unhealthy and full of disrespectful behaviour, while others are simply uninspiring. For many reasons, countless people feel trapped, indifferent, or bored at work. The secret to creating workplaces where people like to work is culture. By exploring six key elements that contribute to a healthy workplace culture, participants will learn the answers to two fundamental questions: "How does your organization's culture impact whether people like where they work?" and "What can you do to make it better?"

Topics Include:

- The Case for Caring About Culture
- Create Peak Performing Teams
- Provide Meaningful Work
- Communicate Your Purpose and Values
- Practice Constructive Conflict Management
- Focus Your Leadership Team on People
- Build Meaningful Relationships
- How to Change Culture

Facilitator: Randy Grieser is the founder and CEO of ACHIEVE Centre for Leadership & Workplace Performance and the Crisis & Trauma Resource Institute (CTRI). He holds a Master of Social Work degree and a Bachelor's degree in Conflict Resolution. Randy is a visionary leader who, together with a team of employees and trainers, has positioned these organizations to be two of the premier providers of professional development training in the industry. He is the author of The Ordinary Leader, and co-author of The Culture Question. Randy gives presentations on leadership and management principles to a wide range of audiences in business, education, health, and government settings. He believes leadership requires us to always be intentional about what we do and how we do it. Randy is a dynamic presenter who delivers insightful presentations that are engaging, humorous and informative. Find his latest thoughts on leadership at TheOrdinaryLeader.com.

How Compassion Found Me and Followed Me to Work

Do you love being a leader but sometimes just want to work at Starbucks? Leaders can feel like they are trying everything and yet still feel it is not enough. This can create a cycle of trying hard, getting frustrated, feeling on the edge of burnout while making an effort to bring your best to work. Let's stop the madness! This session is an opportunity for leaders to reset and refresh. Whether you are a new Director or have been around for awhile, learn how compassion can serve you well at work, and the everyday actions that make for healthier leaders and happier workplaces. You'll leave with a fresh tool kit on how to be the leader that you want to be, prevent burnout and create the energy you want to see at work.

Facilitator: Shannon Gander is a Mental Health and Resiliency Strategist. She is a skilled consultant, trainer, counselor and mediator who has been involved in workplace interventions since the mid 90's. Shannon runs Life Work Wellness, a company that empowers individuals and organizations to up their resiliency and protect their mental health. She has a passion for teaching skills for managing stress and helping people prevent burnout from day-to-day workplace interactions. Shannon's dynamic background in conflict mediation and counselling help her to bring human behaviour topics to life in a way that is authentic and engaging teaching participants skills to apply right away and into the future in all areas of life.

Sharing the Knowledge

We know that many directors and assistant directors come with a plethora of experience and knowledge, this session will tap into that knowledge. Once registration closes, Karen will email each participant about what they will prepare to share with the large group. Each person will get a couple of minutes to share a tip, an idea, a policy or procedure that they think the other directors would benefit from that knowledge. So start thinking about your greatest idea.
